Taking the knowledge he learned climbing Mt. Everest, Alan created an education program that focuses on developing managers and strengthening teams by reinforcing the professional development and leadership skills that are essential for success. Supported by stunning images and videos from the expedition, Alan highlights the strategies, thinking and action steps that allow us to move beyond our perceived limitations, both individually and collectively. Participants will come away with new perspectives and ideas on how each of us can reach new heights in our personal and professional journeys.
